Jordan and I needed our annual break from the harsh winter (the groundhog saw his shadow so only 6 more weeks, right?!), so at the end of January we flew from NY to Arizona!

Our goal was to do a lot of hikes and spend time in nature, and that we did while exploring the areas around Sedona and Flagstaff. I find the landscape, red rocks, desert and forests to be absolutely beautiful out there. And we haven't even seen it in spring or summer yet. That will be for another trip!

At Verde Hot Springs, Arizona, a herd of black cattle is being driven across the dirt road by two riders on horseback. The scene is set in a desert landscape under a clear blue sky.

Quote from the walls at Verde Hot Springs, a place where peace flows right out of the Earth. The quote is a reference to the Genesis 2:5 Bible verse.
